Accenture Strategy & Consulting

Dear Hiring Team,

I am applying for the Strategy Analyst Graduate Position because I am motivated by strategic problem solving in environments where financial logic, business priorities, and technology development increasingly influence one another. What especially attracts me to Accenture Strategy is the breadth of strategic questions the role touches on, from growth and transformation to value creation and innovation, while still maintaining a strong connection to practical implementation and client context.

In my current role at Ørsted, I work with analyses that combine strategic and financial perspectives, and in my earlier role at Danske Bank I supported market and competitor research as well as Excel-based analysis for internal decision material. These experiences have strengthened my ability to structure ambiguous questions, synthesize information from multiple sources, and communicate clearly to stakeholders who need concise and decision-relevant output. I have also gained early exposure to how large organizations balance strategic ambition with operational and financial realities.

Academically, I have built a strong foundation in finance and strategic management, and I have deliberately sought opportunities to broaden that perspective with digital transformation and consulting-related project work. I enjoy roles where I can combine quantitative analysis with strategic synthesis, and where the ultimate goal is to help organizations make better choices under complexity.

If possible, I would be particularly interested in being considered for CFO & Enterprise Value and Industry Strategy. These areas align closely with both my analytical profile and my interest in value creation beyond traditional finance metrics alone. I would be excited by the opportunity to contribute to Accenture's strategy community and continue developing in a setting where high standards, collaboration, and learning go hand in hand.

Kind regards,

Ida Nørgaard
