COVER LETTER

ANNE RISHØJ SØNDERGAARD

STUDENT ASSISTANT FOR LOGISTICS IT, COMMUNICATION AND BUSINESS CHANGE MANAGEMENT

Dear Hiring Team at Arla,

I am excited to apply for the Student Assistant position in Logistics IT, Communication, and Business Change Management at Arla. The opportunity to support communication as part of IT and logistics projects aligns well with both my academic background and professional interests. What particularly stands out to me in this role is the chance to help people manage change by fostering clear communication and supporting well-organized processes that make transitions easier and more effective.

I am about to start my Master's degree in IT, Communication and Organization (ITKO), where I look forward to developing skills in project management, digital communication and system development that can be valuable in supporting the projects in the Logistics Agile Release Train Team.

In addition, I hold a Bachelor's degree in International Business Communication in English, where I built a solid foundation in internal and digital communication. Through courses like Strategizing Communication and Sustainability and Environmental Communication, I developed strong skills in writing for different channels and audiences, analyzing communication needs, and supporting change through clear and purposeful messaging. This makes me confident in tasks like creating engaging materials, supporting communication strategies, and contributing to cross-functional collaboration.

During my time in Australia, working in hospitality and logistics coordination has strengthened my ability to lead teams, solve practical problems, and serve as a link between different stakeholders. In this role, I was responsible for communicating across multiple departments, managing staff, and ensuring smooth day-to-day operations, tasks that required both structure and adaptability. Working under pressure was a natural part of the role, especially when solving logistical challenges and coordinating across teams and departments. These experiences have made me confident in supporting collaboration, handling complex tasks, and contributing to internal communication in a changing work environment. I have also worked in both Luxembourg and London, which has strengthened my ability to navigate different work cultures and communicate effectively in international settings, something I believe will be valuable in a global organization like Arla.

I am especially motivated by the opportunity to support meaningful communication as part of Arla's ongoing digital transformation. This role aligns perfectly with my academic focus and personal interests. I am highly motivated to learn and gain hands-on experience with digital communication tools such as Camtasia and Synthesia, and I am confident in my ability to quickly adapt to new digital tools. My structured mindset, eagerness to learn, creativity and ability to work both independently and collaboratively make me confident that I can provide valuable support to your team.

I am genuinely excited about the position and I hope you will consider my application. I look forward to the opportunity to further discuss how I can hopefully contribute to your team.

Best regards,

Anne Rishøj Søndergaard
