S&C Consultant with strong analytical skills and a global mindset

I am applying for the Graduate position at Accenture because I am motivated by solving complex problems in a global and high-performance environment. I combine strong analytical skills with a collaborative mindset, and I take pride in creating solutions that can be both presented at the strategic level and implemented in practice.

For my Master's thesis, I designed a generative AI adoption strategy for a Danish fintech organization, aligning the company's strategic ambitions with the innovation lab's goals and the day-to-day needs of employees. This experience taught me to balance analysis, communication, and implementation—an ability I see as directly relevant for client work at Accenture.

I enjoy working in international environments, having gained experience in Madrid as well as through cross-cultural collaboration at Studentershus Aarhus. My approach is structured and data-driven, yet also people-focused and adaptable—qualities that allow me to deliver both insights and impact.
